BREASTFEEDING: A CHIROPRACTIC APPROACH

SATURDAY 9TH AND SUNDAY 10TH FEBRUARY 2019

HOLIDAY INN GATWICK, POVEY CROSS ROAD, GATWICK AIRPORT RH6 0BA

EVENT OUTLINE

During this event we will review:

- The current evidence and what this means in practice
- The anatomy and physiology of breastfeeding
- Modifiable and non-modifiable factors of breastfeeding
- Tongue tie: not a black and white issue
- Feeding problems have comorbidities: how do we prioritise problems and keep babies safe?
- Cases and management: applying evidence, anatomy and physiology
- Hands on approaches

There will be a summary with Q&A: please bring cases to discuss

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Understand the role of breastfeeding in Public Health
- Working understanding of the anatomy and physiology involved in optimal breastfeeding practices.
- Practical skills in assessment and management of the infant, with particular focus on feeding difficulties

SPEAKER: Amy Miller

Amy is a full time researcher at Bournemouth University, and her current research is based in the interprofessional student-led breastfeeding clinic. She led the team who developed the UK infant questionnaire, and remains involved in the evolution and application of this tool. In both research and practice, Amy's primary interest is infant feeding. She is passionate about translating the current evidence base for application in practice, and about the creative provision of patient-centred care.
