

Come and Explore Gillingham! Associate Position Available (to New Graduates)

Wigmore, Gillingham, Kent

New graduate or experienced chiropractor who wants to be able to control their own work/life balance

Are you a new graduate or experienced chiropractor looking for a position that allows for freedom to work independently, have a great work-life balance and a relaxed treatment style? If so, this position may be perfect for you.

About the Practice

This is a small, but well-established and very busy clinic in Wigmore, a pretty part of Gillingham. The practice has been there for over 15 years. For years, there have been two chiropractors working full-time, so with the retirement of one colleague a gap has opened up.

There is an established patient base for a new associate to draw upon once you get started. And, with the retirement of a colleague you can start almost immediately.

There's a friendly atmosphere and attitude and a laid-back approach to help patients feel at ease. The focus is on providing patients with a comprehensive and holistic treatment tailored to their needs, in an evidence-informed, patient-centred way.

The patient demographic ranges across all ages, with a diverse range of issues.

The clinic ownership has recently transferred and with it, an online booking system has been introduced. When you join the clinic as an associate there is the opportunity to influence further changes that may happen in the clinic.

The practice has a focus on Sacro-Occipital Technique combined with Diversified and Activator Technique. It also incorporates extremities, paediatrics and cranial treatments to work in an evidence-informed and patient-centred manner, aiming to optimise individual care.

About the Role

The position is for a self-employed chiropractor. It is 3 days a week: Monday, Wednesday and every other Friday, and every other Saturday (although if you don't want to work Saturdays, there is the possibility to just work every Friday).

This allows you to work 25-30 hours a week depending on how you choose to utilise the days available, and gives the time and opportunity for a great work-life balance.

For the new graduate, there is mentoring and support available through the PRT programme. The new graduate would be on a split fee of 50% and a higher percentage once they complete their PRT requirements.

The more experienced chiropractor can expect a higher percentage from the start.

- Good communication skills, with both patients, and colleagues
- Good patient management, diagnostic and treatment skills
- Willingness and interest in learning, growing and developing skills as a chiropractor
- Flexible in attempting to provide patients with a sense of familiarity in treatment style
